Our Members – Your Dermatology Audience

The Australasian College of Dermatologists (ACD)

We are the peak medical college accredited by the Australian Medical Council for the training and professional development of medical practitioners in the specialty of dermatology. We provide authoritative information about dermatology and skin health to Government, the media, other health professionals and the general public.

Medical practitioners who have successfully completed the training program of the ACD are known as Fellows of the College (FACD). Fellows of the College are recognised by the Medical Board of Australia as specialists in dermatology.

What is a dermatologist?

A dermatologist specialises in the diagnosis, treatment and prevention of skin diseases and cancers. The skin is the largest organ in the body and also includes hair, nails, the wet areas of the mouth and genitalia.

Typical skin consultations include acne, psoriasis, atopic eczema, skin infections, mole surveillance, melasma and occupational dermatitis. Dermatologists also conduct Mohs surgery and deliver cosmetic services such as laser therapy.

The majority of Australian dermatologists work in metropolitan private practice. However, many provide outreach services to rural and remote areas on a regular basis.

A large number of dermatologists conduct outpatient clinics in public hospitals and are involved in the training of dermatology registrars. Many are also involved in clinical and academic research.

Reach Out to the Dermatology Community

Work with us and gain access to:

- The only Government accredited provider of specialist training for dermatologists
- Opportunities to promote your aligned organisation to our members
- Promotion on ACD communications platforms, including our magazine, newsletter and targeted EDMs.

Our Communication Platforms

The Mole – Our quarterly magazine

Our flagship communication piece, with a circulation of over 800 members including Fellows and Trainees across Australia and New Zealand. The Mole is also publicly available on our website. It is digital publication that allows for live links to be included.

EDMs

Our Electronic Direct Mail goes out to over 700 Fellows and Trainees with a focus on the most up-to-date news from the dermatology community.

Advertising Terms and Conditions

- ACD accepts advertising from patient support groups, research entities and service organisations with aligned values and goals. Advertising requests from commercial enterprises and/or for branded products are considered on a case-by-case basis.
- ACD reserves the right to reject any advertisement or copy, such as any material considered offensive or material that does not align with our values.
- The advertiser must meet booking deadlines to ensure their advertisements are published. ACD must receive all artwork by no later than 12.00pm on the day material is due. If ACD does not receive artwork by the material deadline date, the advertiser will lose their placement and no refund will be provided.
- ACD must receive all cancellations in writing two weeks before the material deadline date.
- ACD cannot accept responsibility for any errors in digital files supplied to ACD for distribution.

We look forward to working with you.
